

iO

Crafted Light

iO: The fourth moon of Jupiter

In Greek mythology, iO was the priestess who led Zeus astray with her beauty. Jupiter's fourth moon is her namesake, a constant companion giving light. The twin themes of beauty and light are the inspiration behind this unique range.

iO lights will bring a simple, calm beauty to your home or commercial space, emitting a warm glow while adding substance as a finely crafted object. Conceived in 2014 by Tauranga-based designer Mat Macmillan, iO lights are made using premium NZ ply made from locally grown trees. iO is a thoroughly sustainable New Zealand product.

Made for you

iO lights are crafted in our workshop in Tauranga. Each one is created by hand using natural materials and is therefore unique. Stunning alone, or grouped into clusters for impact. Create your own design mix from the wide variety of standard sizes - or talk to us about a custom size to suit your particular space.

iO: Descendants

Over time we have evolved the iO range in size and shape to meet the diverse requirements of our residential and commercial clients.

iO Nimbus

The unique shape of the Nimbus is a visualization of the creative journey described by the psychologist CG Jung; all things we can conceive of exist as potential in the realm of consciousness. In order to bring the potential into reality, we must commit to action and experience the narrow path of existence. This is akin to the process of birth. On arrival there is a new and larger space of potential where all is possible again...

iO Horus

In ancient Egypt, Horus was a God in the form of a Falcon. His right eye was the sun and his left eye was the moon. The sun symbolised power, the moon - healing.

In an epic power struggle with his Uncle, Seth, Horus's left eye was damaged (accounting for the phases of the moon). Fortunately, another God, Toth, was on hand with restorative powers and was able to magically repair the eye.

Thus, the Eye of Horus became a powerful amulet and came to symbolise protection, health and restoration.
