

FINISH CARE

HONOURING INDIVIDUALITY

The sandcasting technique used in the manufacture of the Casts range is a venerated artisanal process. This process is embodied in the surface pitting and pour ripples found on each piece. No Casts piece will be the same, with the unique surface texture serving as a physical timestamp of the fabrication itself.

FINISH PERMUTATION

The raw materials selected for Casts will also undergo an evolution in their surface character. While these products will arrive with a vivid finish; exposure to time, touch, and environment will ensure they develop their own distinctive patina. The pieces are supplied with a thin wax coating which protects the original appearance. The natural breakdown of this protective wax will accelerate changes in tonality and patination. Finish variation is to be expected.

BRONZE

Bronze products will patina, particularly at points of contact, and can include a variety of tonal changes. Bronze will also naturally darken and may develop verdigris depending on its environment. If there is a desire to restore the product to its original appearance, a light application of metal polish, followed by a beeswax protectant will achieve this.

PATINATED BRONZE

This chemically-aged finish will wear over time to expose the bronze underneath. This finish will feature lighter areas at points of contact where the bronze has been rubbed back to a golden tone.

Water and chemical-based cleaners, soaps or abrasive materials will damage the finish and should not be used. We recommend cleaning with a soft lint-free cloth, followed by a beeswax protectant. As the finish is unacquered, regular application of the wax will be necessary to maintain the original chemically patinated finish.

ALUMINIUM

These products can be restored to their original appearance with a light application of metal polish, followed by a beeswax protectant. Consider a silver toned polish to enhance lustre.

BANKSTON + Edition Office

14-16 Stepney St, Stepney SA 5069. Ph +64 (0)6 359 0008

bankstonarchitectural.com.au/edition-office

bankstonarchitectural.co.nz/edition-office

Website

Product
& finish
care